Two Types of G(ALL)ERY Day

All visitors, with and without disabilities, are welcome to enjoy the museum
at their own pace

Leisurely Art Appreciation Day

On this day, people who feel anxious about a museum filled with visitors can appreciate art in an environment that is more spacious than usual. Individuals such as wheelchair users and visitors needing assistance can enjoy their visit stress free.

Dates April 23, June 25,
and October 22, 2025
(Wednesdays)

Hours 10:00–18:00
(last admission at 17:30)

* As usual, strollers cannot be used in the main building on Leisurely Art Appreciation Day.

Bring your baby
to the Museum!

Baby Hours

During these hours, families with babies can feel free to view the exhibitions. Though strollers are ordinarily not permitted in the main building, visitors are welcome to use them during these hours.

Dates April 30, July 2,
and November 5, 2025
(Wednesdays)

Hours 10:00–15:00
(Stroller accessible hours)

An art tour will be held! (In Japanese only)

On G(ALL)ERY Day, visitors can join interactive art tours guided by art communicators.

* Advance registration is required to participate.
Please check the G(ALL)ERY Day page on the museum website for more details.

Reassuring Points

1 Uncrowded and relaxed

Admission numbers are limited, allowing visitors to enjoy exhibitions with less crowding than usual.

2 Smooth accessibility

Ramps are installed over steps, ensuring ease of mobility for wheelchair and stroller users.

3 Support staff

Staff are available to provide support with exhibition viewing and facility use.
Please don't hesitate to ask for assistance.

Visitor Comments

I love visiting art museums, but as someone with a disability, crowded spaces can sometimes make me feel unwell, so I really appreciate this initiative.

The staff's kind words and attentive support made such a difference.

Baby Hours visitor

It was comforting to be among so many other people visiting with children.

My baby is just three months old, so I can't go anywhere without a stroller. Being able to visit the museum like this was such a refreshing change of pace, and I really enjoyed it.

Important information for visitors on G(ALL)ERY Day

To create a relaxed, uncrowded viewing environment, visitor numbers are limited on G(ALL)ERY Day.

Advance purchase of tickets online is required.

Depending on visitor numbers, same-day tickets may not be available, and as a result, entry is not guaranteed even if you visit.

The following visitors, who are eligible for free admission or discounts, do not need to purchase online tickets:

- Visitors with a disability certificate and up to two accompanying people
- Elementary school students and children under elementary school age
- Middle school students residing in or attending a school in Tokyo (will be expanded to all middle school students from June 2025 onward)
- Complimentary ticket holders
- Annual passport holders
- Tokyo Museum Grutto Pass holders
- Visitors utilizing mutual discounts issued jointly with the Institute for Nature Study, National Museum of Nature and Science
- Passport holders/members of Tokyo Metropolitan Foundation for History and Culture-affiliated museums/facilities

*Please contact us for more information on discounts.

- Tickets to the garden are always available.
- Group reservations are not accepted on G(ALL)ERY Days.

Please note that many visitors using wheelchairs or strollers will be present on G(ALL)ERY Days, and art tours involving conversation may take place. If visiting on a G(ALL)ERY Day, we would like to request your understanding of the aims of this program.
